MIT Short Course on Personal Taxation

The MIT Short Course on Personal Taxation seeks to consolidate various aspects of Malta income tax in the context of individual tax payers, as well as social security and certain immigratory considerations. The lecturers, with numerous years of professional experience, will be covering topics which commence from the basis of taxation to individuals from a Malta income tax perspective and the charging provisions in terms of the Income Tax Act.

Schemes in terms of the Malta income tax act and which confer a special tax status to qualifying beneficiaries along with aspects from an international tax perspective will also be covered. This course is aimed at providing professionals and students alike a thorough oversight of the various aspects which come into play when assisting individual tax payers.

Programme Description: The programme covers the following 9 topics over 12 lectures:

- Basis of Taxation: Residence and Ordinary Residence, as well as Domicile, including reference to case law and relevant judgements; Article 4 ITA as the charging provision, and the way in which the source and remittance basis of taxation is applied thereto; the remittance basis of taxation as well as the CfR guidance issued thereon, along with relevant practical examples.
